Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Right to Reign: A Romance of the Kingdom of Drecq A Shuffle of feet on thin carpet as a chair was pushed back hastily; then footsteps across the floor overhead, and a question flung over the stairs to the man mounting slowly: That you, Drecq? Moir s voice came down to him familiarly, but he answered in a monosyllable that lacked ring. He did not pause, however, until he had entered the fourth story bedroom that they shared in common, and then he dropped his medicine case on a table with a stifled imprecation. It had been drizzling all day, with an east wind that had searched the temper of the most equable, - an erratic bit of weather wholly out of keeping with the April calendar. Drecq tumbled out of his wet overcoat and spread it over a chair back to dry. Devilish cold work tramping about in such beastly weather, he announced. How in thunder did you keep dry, Moir? The man at the wash-stand, towel in hand, turned without a word to survey the other, and his big glasses continued to follow his friend about the room until Drecq, half irritably, demanded to know what he wanted.
