Boston, he opened a sewing school for coloured women, to which he gave much personal superintendence, and speaks of it as a great pet with him. Ministry at Large, pp. 107--109. He employed his leisure in the compilation of his book, The Ministry at Large, in which he set down the results of his experience in the mission he instituted. These results are, as he says in a letter to a friend, the great check given to mendicity, and the generally improved condition of the poor, which are felt and acknowledged here by those who take note of moral causes and effects. This work he was able to finish before his death, which occurred April 20th, 1840. He was buried in the beautiful cemetery of Mount Auburn, Boston, where a monument was raised to his memory, to which many of the poor contributed subscriptions....
