Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Agricultural Co-Operation, Vol. 1 The State Board of Public Affairs herewith presents the results of its investigation into cooperation and marketing. It was the intention of the legislature to seek means for the reduction of the cost of living and the betterment of the business side of farming at the same time; therefore, Mr. John Sinclair of the Legislative Reference Library of the Wisconsin Free Library Commission, an enthusiastic student and a trained investigator, undertook this investigation; Several other students cooperated with him. He went to Europe at his own expense and while there he studied the great cooperative movement which has long been in existence there, as well as the whole matter of marketing, having in mind the actual application to the state of Wisconsin. Previous to this attempt no thorough study leading to the construction of a state plan has been made in America. Mr. Sinclair has, therefore, broken new ground in this report, and has carefully laid the foundation for future constructive work along this line. After his return, his preliminary report...
